

After doing Gotti og before performing one of the leading roles in "The Hunley" Armand gives an interview to Movieline magasin it could be in 1998-99 ? The interviewer asks mocking and patronizing unpolite (almost stupid questions) but Armand controls the dialog gently and only replay in a polite way. Among other statements he tells this: " I had a loving family, and in that way I was very lucky, because that saved me from some of the temptations " - later the adds:

"I was walking down 72nd Street a few years ago and this guy drove up and said: `You recognize this face ?' I looked at him and eventhough I had´nt seen him in almost 40 years, I recognized the eyes. This was the kid I was used to run the streets with. We talked for a while, and he told me he just gotten out off 28 years of heroin. He´d never left the block. I always wonder about those fragile lines of demarcation. If I had ´nt known I was loved and cherised, what might have happen to me ? As you get older you ee that where we wer born, where we lived and who we become. It´s that simple "

Armands says that there are films he made that he would never watch, without telling which...he explains laiter that he is working hart at goals of his own wish, like some day soon to produce a film, about Gauguin, Shopin or Edgar Allan Poe, not nessesarely with himself in the leading role, but simply produce and direct these mens lifestory...and that among other reasons this is why he sometimes is to be found in a less good producted film, in a less demanding roles...he also has to earn his living working as an artist to provide his family and pay his staff, alot of people are depending on him. In other words...although it would be nice, Armand can´t always aimed for the cream of the crop, because he has to make the wheels spinn around and his only happy when finally he gets a good part in a good movie. As he had in Odysseus, and he says: "When I did The Odyssey for televison, I got calls and letters from teachers saying they´d showed it to their classes and the kids finally understood the story !"

(As Armand was a kid in school he was introduced to Homers version and called it whimsical !) Armand is content with his life and says: "Not a day goes by when I don´t get down on my knees and rejoice that I got the kind of life I do !"

Considering his fan´s response world wide, they all wish with him, he will get to create the 3 wishes of his, since they would all love to wacth it !
